Russel & Aitken Papers finding aid (47) Papers of Sherriff Family, 1715-1937

The finding aid for the Russel & Aitken Papers has been divided into 63 parts. This part contains a list of records relating mainly to Carronvale and Stenhouse Estates and other properties which were acquired by the Sherriff family in the 19th century.

Family history

The Sherriff family of Carronvale were descendants of George Sherriff (1768-1843) who was an engineer with Carron Company. He assembled Gascoigne's engine at Petrozavodsk in 1789 and in 1804 he founded Dalderse Iron Foundry and built Abbotshaugh House. Dalderse Foundry closed in 1810 and many workers moved to Falkirk Iron Works. George returned to Russia in 1823 and died there in 1843.

George Sherriff married Sarah Roper in 1792 who died after the birth of their only daughter, Sarah. His second wife was Margaret Bell, (d 1826 in childbirth) and they had seven children. The third son, John Bell Sherriff (d 1896) purchased Carronvale in 1857 and purchased the estate of Stenhouse in 1888.

Carronvale Estate

Carronvale estate was originally known as Broomage until the mid-nineteenth century. The Broomage name is still in use in Larbert. The land was sold in 1715 by Lodovick Callander (alias Willison of Dorrator) to the Brown family. It was held of the Earl of Zetland and feued in 1724/25 to the Brown family until James Brown was involved in the failure of the Falkirk Union Bank and property had to be sold. The estate was sold by James Russel (the Trustee) to the Robertson family. They owned the estate until 1857 when John Bell Sherriff bought it. The mansion house was modern when J B Sherriff purchased it but it was sold to the Prudential in 1936, who in turn sold it to the Boys Brigade after the Second World War. A large part of the ground was feued by the Sherriffs in the 1960s and one or two others have been sold since. The Sherriffs still retain ownership of ground, which was sold to Brown in 1715. This was part of Dorrator and divided from Broomage by a "balk and marchstones".

Stenhouse Estate

The Bruces of Stenhouse owned the Stenhouse estate from the early 18th century until it was sold to J B Sherriff of Carronvale and Kersie in 1888. The mansion house was built in 1622 by Sir William Bruce (1st Baronet and one of the Nova Scotia creations of James VI). Sir Michael Bruce (6th Baronet, who died in 1795) achieved lasting notoriety by his destruction of Arthur's O'on in 1743 in order to reclaim the stone. He is the first of the Bruce family to feature in these papers. He sold successive areas to Carron Co in 1759, and the Feu Charters are with these papers. By the time the mansion house of Stenhouse features specifically in the papers, in the mid to late 19th century, it is shown to have been let to successive tenants and seemingly deteriorating in condition as is demonstrated by an early 20th century structural report. George Sherriff sold the building to Carron Co at that time and for a while it was flatted and let to Carron employees before being destroyed by a builder in the 1960s notwithstanding its being listed.

The Sherriff family still owns what is left of Stenhouse estate. Before the sale to J B Sherriff, Sir William Cunningham Bruce had started to feu plots for housing in Stenhousemuir and this process was continued throughout the 20th century by the Sherriffs. Several farms were sold to sitting tenants - Inches, Kersebrock, Muirhead, Lantun and others and some of these have since been sold for housing. The Sherriffs also let ground to the Falkirk Tryst Golf Club, Burnhead Bowling Club, Stenhousemuir Cricket Club and Stenhousemuir Football Club and eventually selling to these clubs at modest prices. Now the only significant part of the estate left, apart from odd pockets of ground and some lying farmland the other side of Carron is the part of the former Tryst ground used for the shows at the Tryst holiday in September. Russel & Aitken still hold the chartularies for the estate which shows the development of Stenhousemuir over the last 150 or more years.
